

Cutchogue – New Suffolk Free Library

P.O. Box 935 ~ 27550 Main Road

Cutchogue, New York 11935

631-734-6360 fax 631-734-7010

August 13, 2008

To Whom It May Concern:

Construction Consultants recently completed a major renovation of the Cutchogue-New Suffolk Free Library. One half of the building is in a church built in 1862 that was stabilized on wood cribbing and steel in order to excavate and build a basement community room. A second story mezzanine was also built throughout the entire building; this requiring the addition of several dormers. In the end, the project approximately doubled the square footage of the building without changing the footprint. As such, the job entailed a variety of challenges the CCLI staff approached with patience, diligence and a sense of professionalism. The result was a high quality project that came in on time and on budget. With a solid sense of teamwork and community, Joel and his staff worked tirelessly with me and other Library representatives to meet and exceed the objectives set forth in the project. Even after the building was turned over to the Library, CCLI staff continues to work with us to ensure every detail is completed to our satisfaction. Without hesitation the Library has recommended CCLI to several other Libraries embarking on building programs. Every day, Library patrons commend the project to our staff and it is a pleasure to tell them we owe our success to the folks at CCLI. Many thanks to Joel, Eric and Rob for a job well done.

Sincerely,

Liz Burns

Library Director